

Becoming Part of the Airbus Supply Chain Thursday, February 3rd at 12noon EST This webinar briefing will focus on contracting with aircraft manufacturer Airbus, which sources about $10 billion a year from US companies, making it the number one export-customer of the U.S. aerospace industry. Procurement officials from Airbus will discuss the company's procurement strategy and discuss how U.S. companies can become part of its supply chain. Speakers include:

- * David Williams - Vice President, Procurement, Airbus Americas
- * Serge Taba - Senior Director Procurement Quality and Supplier Development
- * Mike Skorija - Director - Global Supply Chain Management - RTI International Metals Inc.
- * Jon Iverson - Vice President of Machining, Technology and Defense - TechSolve

In December 2010, Airbus Americas and EADS-North America created a joint U.S. Sourcing Office, at Airbus Americas' headquarters in Herndon, Virginia. David Williams, the new Head of the U.S. Sourcing Office, will take part in the webinar briefing. Cost: $55.
